Karen Greenfield

I am interested in becoming one of the general public members of the Howard County Board of Electrical Examiners. I graduated from the University of Maryland in 1975 with a BA in Theatre. I concentrated in technical theatre, especially lighting design. It was there that I became intrigued with electricity. I decided I wanted to become an electrician and applied for and was accepted into Local 26 of the IBEW in the fall of 1975. I worked on many projects in the Washington, DC area and worked my way up from apprentice to journeyman to foreman. I got my Maryland master's electrician license in 1987, which I still hold (inactive). I eventually went into the office and became an electrical estimator estimating commercial electrical jobs in the DC area. I retired in 2007. I still retain a keen interest in electrical work and think I would be an asset on the Board.

Sincerely yours,

Karen Greenfield
