Jennifer began her career as a Registered Nurse at Prince George's County Hospital and for 10 years practiced critical care nursing at several Maryland hospitals. Jennifer left her nursing career to accept a position as a Pharmaceutical Sales Representative in the DC area. After 3 years she was promoted into a training role in the Sales Training department at corporate headquarters in NJ. For the next 7 years Jennifer worked with the sales training team as an instructor, eventually taking a management position. In 1995, Jennifer signed with a consulting company to work with organizations, both for-profit and non-profit, to provide selection, performance management and people development skills for leaders.

In her work in the past 5 years with the Maryland Coalition of Families, Jennifer has applied her experience of building leaders to working with families of children with mental and behavioral health disorders. She has relied heavily on her real life experience as a mother and parent leader to a young adult with mental illness and substance use disorder.
