SCOTT B. MARKOW

Scott B. Markow is a registered patent attorney with almost two decades of experience in corporate, law firm, government, and academic settings.

He currently works as Senior Group Patent Counsel for Stanley Black & Decker, Inc., in Towson, MD, where he leads the attorney team that supports the professional power tools and accessories divisions. His practice includes patent portfolio management; preparation and prosecution of patent and trademark applications; preparation of patent and trademark opinions; investigation and management of intellectual property disputes and litigation; and negotiation and drafting of license agreements.

Mr. Markow previously was an associate with the law firms of Fish & Richardson and Covington & Burling in Washington, DC, where he practiced in the areas of intellectual property litigation, patent prosecution, and drug and medical device regulation. He also has also worked as a law clerk to Judge Murray M. Schwartz, and a patent examiner at the United States Patent & Trademark Office. In addition, he has taught legal research and writing at Georgetown University Law Center.

Mr. Markow has a strong commitment to public service and pro bono work. He has worked as a volunteer attorney at the Jewish Legal Services clinic in Baltimore, MD, and as a visiting attorney at Neighborhood Legal Services in Washington, DC.

Mr. Markow graduated, magna cum laude, from Georgetown University Law Center, where he was an associate editor of the Georgetown Law Review. He received a B.S. in Mechanical & Aerospace Engineering, with distinction, from Cornell University. He resides in Columbia, MD with his wife and two children.
